IF YOUR SITE ISN'T SHOWING UP WELL IN GOOGLE, IT'S TIME FOR A WEBSITE STRESS TEST

In 2014, these are some the key factors Google is using to rank your website. It's all about how much value your visitors perceive you offer them.

- LOADING SPEED: Even if your site is cool and/or complex, being part of a website that loads in 1 second.
- BOUNCE RATE: Lending people on the same page they normally do is less than 10 seconds, it's bounce.
- ENGAGEMENT: If they find good information on your website and look to it, it shows it, you get more points.
- PAGES VISITED: The more pages visited, the more Google sees your site as having valuable information.
- RETURN VISITS: The more folks come back, it tells Google you're keeping on offering fully good info!
- TIME ON WEBSITE: More is obviously better, people stay on your site like if people like it, Google likes it.
- RESPONSIVE: Google now demands non-responsive sites on your phone to use a site on their phone if it's not mobile-optimized.
- ROBOTS.TXT: Lets your site plays well with search engine bots crawling the web indexing sites.
- W3 STANDARDS: World Wide Web Consortium standards that show your website work for people with disabilities.
